The German labour market is also open to esports professionals from abroad. To find out if you need a visa to enter or a residence permit to stay in Germany, see the “How do I apply for a visa?” section.

You want to work as an esports professional

When are you considered an esports professional?

You are considered an esports professional if you receive more than an expense allowance for your activities.

To obtain a visa to take up employment as an esports professional, you must meet the following conditions:

- You must be at least 16 years of age;
- You must work at a German esports club or similar esports institution. This institution must participate in competitive esports;
- The esports club or institution must pay you an annual gross salary of at least €50,700 (as of 2026);
- The national association responsible for esports confirms the professional performance of esports and that the form of esports performed is of considerable national or international importance, for example because there is a major national/international league. Concerning this, the German Esports Federation ESBD has published a list of qualified esports gaming operations .
